An certain districts calling out is prohibited, and the prohibition, we think, ought to be enforced That, however, is a comparatively small matter. The important question is how far the hawkers ought to be allowed FRANCIS that the question for the Busitary Board is merely one of cleaning up the dirt after the hawkers. Any matter affecting the food supply of the public ought to engage the consideration of the Board, and as pointed out by the Prosident, the Inspector of Markets campot exercise supervision over hawkers. Occasionally the Police bring up a hawker for selling unwholesome fruit, but it is to be feared that a good deal of stuff is sold by these men in the lower quarters of the town that would never be allowed to be sold in the markets. Then the freedom accorded to the hawkers, results in the stalls in the markets being untenanted. Why should a man pay rent for a stall in the market if he can carry on his business of appreaches to the docks and also at other points. selling vegetables as well outside?
